There is reason to believe that the adoption of this plan would be productive of more waste, greater cost, and inferior work.

INTEROCEANIC COMMERCE. Eads's Ship Railway and His Mexican

Concession. Mr. Eads was granted a conce the Mexican congress on April 26, 1881, to construct a ship railway or canal across the thmus of Telmantepee. The construction of the proposed highway would necessitate crossing the states of Vera Cruz and Oojaca. A question would arise with capitalists ba-fore investing in this scheme: Whether these states have authorized the Mexican congress to grant a right of way across their congress to grant a right of way across their territory to a private corporation of foreigners, or whether they have joined with the Mexican congress in granting Mr. Eads this valuable concession.

As a business proposition, would it not be well for Mr. Eads to include a copy of his grant in one of the many pamphiets he is distributing for the information of capitalists and members of Congress? This would give all the "best rock" information to those who desire to aid this important enterprise. This done, would it not be well to publish in the same connection the detail estimates of cost of the construction of the marine docks, turn tables, railroad, and equipment, as the bill now before Congress is not as explicit as the friends of the enterprise would have it? For instance, the bill provides (page 4): "And if said company shall, in the presence of said board, transport a loaded vessel weighing, with he load, not less than 3,000 tons "the grarantee of the United States as hereinbefore provided for shall at once attach."

It has been surgrested that, inasmuch as Mr. Eads has insimuted that his canal and

It has been surgested that, inasmuch as Mr. Ends has insinuated that his canal and ship raflway would have capacity to dock and transport a vessel of 1,500 tons measurement, would it not be well to stipulate the depth of water which he will guarantee over at bar at the mouth of the Coatraccalcos river and the draft of vessel he will guarantee to transport from ocean to ocean?

It is a well-known fact that vessels drawing over twelve feet cannot enter the Coatzacoalcos river. At the same time there are very many vessels which, with their load weighing 3,000 tons, will not draw twelve feet of water.

Mr Eads gives a large amount of information which is very convincing and important. His statement of the estimated cost of operating the ship railway, on page 60 of his pamphiet, entitled "The Atlantic and Pacific Ship Railway," is a conclusive argument that the investment will pay a large dividend upon the capital. But Mr. Eads must have erred in his calculations upon the cost of docking vessels. He says: "The cost at the terminals will be $350 per day, $35 per ship," or 22 cents per ton. These figures will surprise vessel owners, who have heretofore paid 25 cents per ton far, docking their ships at most any of the marine docks or marine railways throughout the country.

Mr. Eads bases his estimate upon the supposition that he will handle ten vessels each day for 365 days. Will not the expense be the same (less the fuel consumed) if he handles one vessel per day? The employes must be "on watch" day and night; they must be paid, whether a vessel is to be docked or not. Mr. Eads may adopt the business regulations of the hotel keeper on the "old Santa Fe road," who had but one guest during the year and charged him for a night's lodging the total expense of the hotel for the year.

As railways have been constructed by "Credit Mobiliers" and "construction companies" in this country the past few years at a large profit to the parties giving out the contract, and to the detriment of the stock and bondholders of the railway company, I will, in another communication, undertake to show that Mr. Eads has over-estimated the contract of the construction of his ship rail. to show that Mr. Eads has over-estimated the cost of the construction of his ship railway. And as he has entered into this work as a "labor of love," he would not expect his friends or this government to contribute more than a fair compensation for his genlus, energy, and indomitable will.

Congress has had some experience in subsidizing railway companies, consequently sidiring rallway companies, consequently will require bottom facts before they will will require bottom facts before they will vote away the people's moneys.

The American people are anxious for the construction of the "ship railway," but they expect their representatives to protect their interest by contributing no more than the setual cost of the same with fair profits to the constructors.

Auter's "Fra Diavolo" together a select and appreciative audience, if not very enthusiantle. Autor's Fra Diavolo' has been before the public so hong that it is perfectly familiar to every opera-gor. The performance of last eventug was one of more than ordinary interest, however, as it marked the supersance of a new prima doma, who, if she did not create a favor, did make a success as Zerlina, which was at once artistic and serited. Mile. Fobsitemis voice is a light soprano of excellent quality, and is so well controlled that nothing in vocal technics is impossible for her. Her rams, trilla, and the most elaborate embellaments are done smoothly, with seeming case, and manicantly training is shown in the conscientious manner in which every pirase is rounded. Her stage manner is refund, and she showed not the slightest disposition to the libertics which are too often observed in meatrical work. A different opera would have offered inger opportunities for a display of dramatic singing, though it is doubtrial if she has the power to autain a heavy role. However, she is very young—less than 22 years old—ond her present work shows that she has a bright future in opera. She is now a charming singer, and, with the demension we have mentioued, her appearance marked an opoch in the present musical season, bel Piento Beppo, Cherubini (Glacomo, Mme, Lablache Lady Kohurg, Caracelolo (Lord Koburg) all sang and piayed with their accustomed ability, while Haveli (Fra Diavolo) stared the honors of the evening with Pobleton. for the nost pesimistic human heart to desize. To those who know the company, bloutified as it is with the Standard Theater in Noryork city, its faucess what a matter of course, following their appearance as the night the day. But the demonstrations of popular approval given them by a cultured and exacting audience assembled at the height of the season at the capital was especially granifying.
"The Mikando," as rendered last evening, was a revelation—the music, the stage setting, the costumes and the setting. The company, as a whole, is the best the country affords in comiopera. Mr. J. H. Ryley has been for years associated with the Standard Opera House, which is known in New York as the home of English opera. He has been the first in this country to render the leading parts in all of the Gibert and Sullivan operas—the Major General in the "Pirates," the Admiral in "Pimafore," the Lord High Chamberlain in "Iolanthe," and Buntherre in "Patlence," Whenever a new Gilbert and Sullivan is announced in New York the first thought is we shall see Ryley in H.
He was soon appreciated by the house last evening and secorted frequent and hearty applanto as Ko-Ko. His "business" could not be improved, for he never spares himself in action or contortion, vocal or physical. There is not upon any stage a pair of legs so versatile or twinking as are kyley's. Mr. Thomas Whiffen makes the most of the role of Pop-Bah, which is a fine piece of drawing. His Oriental stolidity is simply superb, and he is in every way a worthy conveyancer of inimitable, delicate serves mp into his mouth. In person he is the history and construction while as presents and melody. Her acting, like that of all the dispattles, Mr. M

A very superior audience witnessed a very interior play at Herzog's last night—"The Banker's Paughter." The house was filled and overcrowded, yet, of all the multitude only few exhibited any skyns of interest. This is honorable to our people, though not complimentary to Brousen Howard's "great play." The company of actors and actresses is a fine cone, and, doubtiess, in a true drama, would be able to give entire satisfaction.

able to give entire satisfaction.

THE IMME MUSEUM.

"Handsome Jack" had crowds of admirers last night at the Dime, for they rushed to see him, or her, Miss Minnie Oscar Gray representing the character. The entire evening was glorious, said everybody, and hands applauding till tired and smarting confirmed the declaration. There could not be a sweeter Jack than Minnie, and her shadow, Quilt Arnold, W. T. Stevens, was luminous. The educated does shared the universal enthusiasen, and

A bill was yesterday introduced in the Virginia house to incorporate the Powell's Valley Railroad Commany, to run from the Manassas branch of the Virginia Midland road down the valley to Harrisonburg. Va.

The supreme court of New York has granted an order permitting the Central Trust Company of New York to bring an action against the receiver of the New York, Chicago and St. Lonis (Nickel Plate) railroad to foreclose the $15,092,000 mortgage given to secure the payment of an equal amount of bonds on Doc. I. 1882.

Officers of the Peunsylvania Railroad Company say that airendy more than half of the men in the service of the company have applied for the benefits of the rolled department. A dispatch received from the superintendent of the Pittsburg division yesterday said that he had received 1,000 applications and had knowledge of as many more, making fally 75 per cent. of the force who have signified their intention to become mentiums. On the Philadelphia division, 351 recipit-handlers, station cmployes, &c. being so per cent, of the train bands have also joined the movement. The same proportion is reported on their New York division.
